FURTHER DEMOCRATIC GAINS. A DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY OF 57 IN CONGRESS INDI-CATED-CLEVELAND'S MAJORITY 189,000, AND GROWING-THE PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE DEMOCRATIC-THE RESULTS IN CALIFORNIA, COLORADO, IOWA, ILLINOIS, MICRIGAN AND MINNESOTA.

The latest reports indicate a Democratic majority of 57 in the next Congress, but several districts still remain in doubt. In New-York Cleveland's plurality has grown to 189,000, with the probability that it will be increased by complete returns. The Free Canals Amendment has about 150,000 majority. The Legislature and the Congressional delegations remain unchanged. The Pennsylvania Legislaturé is Democratie by 11 majority on joint ballot. In New-Jersey the Democrats will have from 3 to 7 majority in the Legislature. California has elected Democratic State officers and a Democratic Legislature. In Iowa the Republicans have lost four Congressional Districts. The Michigan and Minnesota Legislatures are Republican by reduced majorities. In Colorado the Democrats elected the Governor, but the other State officers, Congressman and Legislature are Republican. The Illinois Legislature

THE PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE. A DEMOCRATIC MAJORITY OF ELEVEN ON JOINT BALLOT.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Complete returns show that the next State Senate will consist of 29 Republicans and 21 Democrats. Returns from nearly all the Assembly districts, and careful estimates of those to be heard from, give the Democrats 110 members and the Republicans 91. These figures will not be materially changed. The Democrats will thus have a majority of 11 on joint ballot. The present Senate stands 32 Republicans and 18 Democrats, and the House 122 Republicans and 79

THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE MAJORITY SMALL. CONCORD, N. H., Nov. 9,-Returns from 227 towns give the following votes for Governor: Hale (Rep.), 37.754; Edgerly (Dem.), 36,396; scattering. 964. Hale's plurality is 1,358, and his majority 434 in these towns. Of the nine remaining towns majorities have been received in five of them which, with the vote for Governor in 1880 in the remaining four, give Edgerly a majority of 170, which reduces Hale's majority to 261.

All except three towns in the 1st Congressional District give Martin A. Haynes (Rep.) 19,383 votes, and George Byron Chandler (Dem.) 15,591. The remaining towns, on the basis of the vote for Governor, will give Havnes 326 votes and Chandler 351, making Haynes's purality 3,707. All except twenty-seven towns in the IId District give Ossian Ray (Rep.) 18,916 votes, and J. D. Fiosley (Dem.) 16,686. His plurality in the district will be about 0.83

BULLDOZING IN MISSISSIPPL GENERAL CHALMERS'S CHARGES.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 9.—General James R. Chalners, the Independent Democratic candidate for Congress in the Hd Mississippi District, opposing Van H. Manning, the Democratic nominee, is in this city. In an interview he asserted that bulldozing was practised in Tallahatchie County, where the election was prevented from being held under the pretext of the fear of smallpox, which fact deprived him of 500 votes; and that in one district prived nim of 500 votes; and that in one district in De Soto County, where the judgestrefused to hold the election, he lost 200 votes. Notwithstanding all these losses he claims his election, on the returns that have been made, by 1.070 majority.

SPEECHES AT THE LORD MAYOR'S BANQUET WHAT MR. GLADSTONE, LORD GRANVILLE AND MR. CHILDERS HAVE TO SAY ON IRISH AND EGYP-

TIAN AFFAIRS. LONDON, Nov. 9.-Lord Granville, Lord Selborne. the Earl of Northbrook, the Earl of Kimberley, Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Childers, Secretary of State for War. and Mr. Fawcett, Postmaster-General, were among those present at the banquet given to-night by the new Lord Mayor.

Mr. Childers, returning thanks for the toast to the Army, compared the capture of Tel-el-Kebir with the taking of Quebec by the British. He pointed out that England had not waged war with unvarying success, and said that perhaps the most conspicuous disasters she ever met with had been in war with her American subjects.

Mr. Gladstone, replying to the toast to Her Majesty's Ministers, said that when he spoke at the late Lord Mayor's banquet in 1881 the question then was whether the fabric of society in Ireland was to remain on its ancient foundation, or be broken up. The Government had not scrupled to use the powers intrusted to them with vigor and determination. At the same time they relied more confidently on measures of justice. He could now, he said, record his conviction that a new tone of sentiment was dawning among the Irish, to seek amelioration of law by peaceful efforts. He ventured to say that the foundations of society in Ireland were now in but little danger. The monthly return of agrarian 2.642 in the IVth; and Nelson, Rep., 3,868 in the outrages was now 111, as compared with 511 committed in October, 1881. There might be in Ireland extravagant opinions and desires that could never be fulfilled; but if the Irish be content to walk in the ways of legality, the Empire was strong and free enough to entertain in a friendly and kindly spirit any demand that may be made for free discussion and perfect publicity in matters relating to its Irish policy. British institutions would have strength enough, he was firmly convinced, to effect a settlement of every political controversy by bringing it to a completely satisfactory, or at least a fair and tolerable issue

Mr. Gladstone highly praised the conduct of the British forces in the Egyptian campaign, which he believed would be memorable in history. The Government, he said, must not be too confident of the future. The vast extent of the Empire exposed them to ever-recurring anxiety. Yet he cherished the hops that England would ever be able to prove her power in association with liberty.

Lord Granville declined to enter into details Lord transline declined to enter into details in regard to the Government's Egyptiac policy. Lord Dufferig, he said, had not gone to Egypt to estab-lish any undue or illegitimate influence there, but to cooperate with Sir Edward Malet, whose legal knowledge and great ability were invaluable for the maintenance of peace, order and good govern-ment in Egypt in the future.

 TOPICS BEFORE PARLIAMENT. AFFAIRS RELATING TO EGYPT-THE CUBAN REFU

LONDON, Nov. 9 .- In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Gladstone, replying to a question by Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, Conservative, said that the object of Lora Dufferia's mission to Egypt is to conduct necessary negotiations with the Egyptian Government. No machinery exists, he said, by which the Egyptian people could be conenited with regard to their future government.

Mr. Bourke, Conservative, gave notice that he would move that the House regrets that, after the nuconditional surrender of Arabi Pacha to the British:, he was delivered to an Egyptian tribunal. This was received with loud cheers.

Sir Charles Dilke, Under-Foreign Secretary, in reply to Lord Randolph Churchill, said that Engfand would be unable to make proper representations concerning the Cuban refugees until the receipt of information giving the real facts in the Mr. Gladstone stated that Sir Charles Rivers-

OUTLINE OF THE POLICY OF FRANCE. THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT'S POL-

TOY TO THE CHAMBERS. PARIS, Nov. 9.-The Chambers reassembled to tay. The declaration of the Government's policy, as announced yesterday, was received quietly, but apparently with favor, with the exception of the statement in regard to danger from Amerchists, which the Extreme Lept greeted with murmurs. The declaration says that nothing appears likely to disturb peace. The simultaneous appointment of Ambassadors to Paris and Rome was evidence of the mutual friendly dispositions of France and Italy. The British Cabinet has spontaneously broached the subject of Egypt to the French Government. The latter is now studying those propositions. The declaration expresses a firm resolution to maintain public order and asks Parliament to set aside for the present questions capable of preventing harmony in public opinion and the formation a governmental majority. The Government asks the Chamber to discuss the budget before everything, and afterward to consider a bill dealing with habituai criminals, with a view to the urgency of removing all malefactors from French territory and relegating teem to the colonies. Bills will be introduced dealing with the organization of judicial tribunals and the organization of the Administraanonymous persons or real malefactors to abuse the and XXth Districts, and Worthington (Dem.) in the Xth. An article written by M. Beaulien in the Journal des Debats yestering on the state of the revenue make a great impression and caused rentes to decline. M. Beaulien says that taxes, credit and confidence are all in an onneathly condition. The anticipated excesses of taxes have declined each month. For September they produced 2,000,000 francs less than for september in 1881. He calculates that the deficiency for the present financial year will be 60,000,000 francs and it is possible that will reach 150,000,000 francs.

PESTH, Nov. 9.—At a sitting to-day of the Committee on Finance of the Delegations, Count Kalnoky, the Austrian Prime Minister, in reply to a request for information, dwelt with great satisfaction on the fact that Italy, barely a year ago, recorded in an unequovical manner her wish to unite with the views of the Austro-German alliance, These friendly relations might now be regarded as firmly consolidated. The cordial feeling entertained by Italy was in no way | EVOLUTIONISTS AT DINNER affected, he said, by the inability of Emperor Francis Joseph to return King Humbert's visit. Referring to the attitude of Russia, Count Kalnoky said that the peaceful convictions which the Crar had given expression to and had succeeded in uphoiding, were a piedge that from Russia no danger threatened the peace of Europe. Count Kainoky referred also to the friendly relations ex-isting between the Western Powers, and drew therefrom the conclusion that no disturbance of the general peace need be apprehedded.

A COMPLIMENT TO HERBERT SPENCER.

BRILLIANT GATHERING AT DELMONICO'S-THE ENG-LISH PHILOSOPHER WARMLY WELCOMED-SPEECHES BY THE GUEST OF THE EVENING, AND BY MR. EVARTS, MR. BEECHER, JOHN FISKE, PRO-FESSORS SUMNER AND MARSH, AND CARL SCHURZ.

A dinner was given at Delmonico's last evening to Herbert Spencer, who is to sail for England to-morrow. The gathering was large, cultured and brilliant. The Hon. William M. Evarts presided and made the address of welcome to Mr. Spencer, who was greeted in the heartiest manner. He responded in a speech in which he dwelt on the American tendency to overwork. Speeches were also made by Henry Ward Beecher, John Fiske, Professor W. G. Sumner, Professor O. C. Marsh and Carl

GENERAL FEATURES OF THE DINNER. It was a brilliant gathering which began to assemble at Delmonico's about half-past 6. Men who long ago achieved reputation in their various cailings at the bar, in the pulpit and in the professor's chair, were among the number. The occasion was one which could not fail to draw together men of high attainments to do honor at a public dinner to Herbert Spencer, the English philosopher. The immediate cause of the dinner was the fact that Mr. Spencer is to sail for his home on Saturday afternoon, and men of learning were naturally anxious that some expression should be made of their respect for his genius and of gratitude for the instruction and benefit they have derived from his works. Since Mr. Spencer arrived in this country many some of the men arrested for participation in the rioting Nenban have confessed that azitators are busy distributing money and eights among the workmen.

In the time to induce him to consent to a public demonstration in his honor; but owing to his ill-health and the fact that he had come here for rest and recreation, these efforts had been hitherto without result. He finally consented to be present at the dinner last evening, though not without some misgivings as to the effect it might have upon his physical condition.

When the guests had assembled in the receptionroom at 7 o'clock, Mr. Evarts, the chairman of the evening, escorted Mr. Spencer to the table, followed by Professor L. L. Youmans, Professor O. C. Marsh, Professor John Fiske, Sir Richard Temple, Henry Ward Beecher and the others present. The table at which the chairman and the guests of the evening sat, together with those who responded to toasts, was situated on a low platform on theatrical manager, against each other, arising from the non-fulfilment of en engagement by the former to go on a tour to America, both were non-suited, but M. Mayer was condemned to pay costs."

the west side of the room. Mr. Spencer the west on the right of Mr. Evarts, and Carl Schurz on his left. The tables at which the re mainder of the company sat stood at right angles to the chairman's table. In the gallery at the east end , of the room was stationed an orchestra, which, during the dinner, performed a running accompani-ment of "Patience," "La Mascotte," "Olivette," and other popular music, to the rattle of knives and forks and the low murmur of small talk which is relished by wise men now and then. The tables were descrated with flowers and fruit. At each end of the chairman's table stood a large vase of exotic plants, while in the centre rested a silver stand filled with crimson and white roses. On the other tables were vases of flowers and silver epergnes laden with fruit and tinted with a rosy light from ornamental lamps with crimson shades. The menu was long and evidently interesting, as it was carefully attended to from beginning to end. When it had been exhausted and the eigars were lighted Mr. Evarts rose. He spoke at some length in regard to the occasion of the dinner and drew forth laughter by his remarks in regard to the well-satisfied physical state of those present. His description of the method by which certain cannibals endeavored to absorb the attainments of men of genius was received with hearty laughter. His first mention of the name of Mr. Spencer was the signal for an outburst of applause, the spontaneity and energy of which left no doubt of the cordial sympathy and hearty admiration entertained by the company for the distinguished guest of the evening. When Mr, Evarts had concluded his introductory speech, which was followed by loud applause, Mr. Spencer rose slowly hesitation. He was greated with long and nearty applause, mingled with cheers, and accompanied by the waving of handkerchiefs Many who had not seen him before, owing to the quiet and secluded manner in which he had passed his time since arriving in America, crowlled forward in order to study his characteristic features and to avoid the possibility of losing any part of his speech. His high forehead, surmounted by his large bald head, his thin iron-gray hair and whiskers, his keen eyes, half hidden behind their specta les, his firmly compressed mouth, with its closely shaven upper lip, and his ruddy English complexion, were noted by many eyes. With one and resting on his hip and the other upon the table before him, he spoke in a low tone, rendered necessary by his physical weakness, in a conversational manner and without any attempt at gesture or oratorical effect of any kind. He had notes of his speech, to which he occasionally referred. After thanking the assembly for the kind greeting which he had received, he said that he had lately given utterance to some opin-ions about this country which had met with a reception more generous than he had anticipated. He thought that since his criticisins had been taken so kindly, he might venture upon some further fault finding, an announcement at which those present laughed hearttly. He then entered into a discussion of the American tendency to overwork. He touched upon the achievements of the country, and said that the Nation was full of bustle and enterprise. He thought that this fact caused a sapping of the vital powers which brought on the debility of age at a period of life earlier than was necessary, He had learned that the hair of Americans turned gray about ten years earlier than that of Englishmen. This, he believed, was due to the stress of business under which all Americans lived. He spoke of John Stuart Mills whose name was greeted with prolonged appliance. Mr. Mill had asserted that life was for learning and working. Mr. Spencer thought that this saying should be reversed-that learnchildon was formed to leading. Anthracites, of Pottsville, implementations Actives of Reading, and Merritts, of Camden were caselys, of Winnington; and Merritts, of Camden were caselys, of Winnington; and Merritts, of Camden were and many other characteristic utterances of the anic leading will be alto join. The rules of the American Association will be set to join. ing and working were for life. were much applauded. He was listened to throughout his speech with a stient attention which plainly told the esteem in which he was held by the co pany, and on resuming his seat, was applanded
